September is Banned Books Month

Celebrate the freedom to read!

Banned Books Week is officially the last week of September, but we are extending it for the entire month.

Throughout September, we will have displays and activities highlighting this form of censorship.

Check out one of our mystery wrapped books and take it home with you. Can you name the book based on its redacted description?

Discover the assorted reasons books have been banned ("The Diary of Anne Frank" was cited as "too depressing").

Learn about books that have been removed or challenged in schools and libraries in the United States every year. Some you might agree with, and others will surprise you.

Youth Services Librarians visit local schools

Kids are back in school this month, and so are the Youth Services Librarians.

Every month during the school year, children's librarians visit classes to share fun stories, book recommendations, and information about library services.

Last year we visited every class at Boeckman Creek, Boones Ferry, and Lowrie Primary Schools at least once. Our visits included everything from "Elephant & Piggie" stories and cool science demonstrations to dog jokes and cookie eating contests.

We're looking forward to many fun visits with kids and teachers this school year!

Did you know?
Over 2,300 children and teens signed up for the 2017 Summer Reading Program. That's more than 10% of the population of Wilsonville!
